The 2012 BMW G650 GS is a motorcycle model produced by the German automaker BMW. It belongs to the company's G-series of dual-sport bikes, which are designed for both on- and off-road use. The G650 GS features a 652cc single-cylinder engine and a 21-inch front wheel, making it well-suited for adventure riding and off-road exploration. The bike has a low seat height, making it accessible to a wide range of riders and a relatively light weight making it easy to handle. It comes standard with ABS, which is a safety feature that improves braking performance and reduces the risk of a crash. It was a popular model and was well received by the riders and media.
