Technically, there was no SS396 Chevelle series in 1969. In 1969 the SS 396 as a series was dropped and the 396 engine was relegated to being part of the RPO Z25, SS 396 option. This optioned 1969 Chevelle comes complete with original drivetrain to include the (slightly upgraded) SS396 Engine, 4-speed manual transmission and 12 bolt posi-traction rear end. With a 795 trim code that gave you the Midnight Green coated fabric interior which is still in really good shape today. The day it was born it had Frost green paint and a Midnight Green vinyl top that has been remedied by removing the vinyl top and adding Forest green paint all over. Contrary to popular belief, bucket seats were not standard on the SS as is shown with this example here. As far as upgrades are concerned, the 396 went under the knife not so long ago to get a new Comp Cams 268H cam, and a good carb tuning and now it feels like it has more power than it should for a 53-year-old car.
